has been more than fully realized. The popular demonstrations of interest in the university on the part of the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Knights of America in the founding of the chairs of history by the one and of English litera-ture by the other was a manifestation of the deep interest which the people feel in the university. A source of great encour-agement was also found in the tribute paid ry of a devoted priest on the part of the Catholics of Brooklyn in the establishment of a scholarship to the Rev. James H. Mitchell, Lil. D. Reference was made to the deaths last year of Mr. Joseph Banigan, of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. Eugene Kelly, of New York, both devoted of Catholic colleges at Chicago, which, ini-tiated by the university, and presided over by the right reverend rector, has had for its aim the unification of the educational system of the church. The college is the training ground for life, as well as the preparing place for the professions and the university. The importance of relig-ion in education is felt in every part of the system, for true education finds in religion its very soul. To the Catholic, religion in education means something more than a vague general idea of God and morality; it is something more than broad principles of goodness; it is a vital, positive, force, coming from doctrinal and moral teachings of the Church established by Christ.

The college holds a middle place between the first and the last steps in education. The home, the church, the preparatory school lead to it. The professional schools, the university, or the broad field of life are beyond it. The idea of the college is one of unfolding, development, training. It is the time of discipline which prepares men to become thinkers and leaders to de-The large hall was filled with the relatives and friends of the dyoung men who graduated, among them being many prominent members of the diplomatic corps. The exercises commenced shortly after 10 o'clock, and the opening address was delivered by Right Rev. Mgr. Conaty prefaced bis address with a few remarks. He expressed the gratitude of the university to all who had bonored it with their presence at the closing exercises of the tenth scholastic year. He was happy to congratulate the university on the completion of its first lecade, and referred to the evidance of the year. He was happy to congratuate the university on the completion of its first decade, and referred to the evidences of its success as manifested not only in the wealth of buildings which it possessed, but more especially in the ability of the men who had been charged with instruction, and the pupils who, having received it from their hands, were now giving faithful service to church and state.

He characterized the present scholastic year as being one of great fruitfulness, both in the gifts which had been bestowed or promised and also in the character of the work which had been done. The visit of the foundress of the university, the marquise de Merinville, at the opening of the year seemed to bring with it promise of successful co-operation, which has been more than fully realized. The which finds its source in religion and the spiritual force which religion contains. Patriotism is based on unselfishness. The man who puts self before everything, who does nothing in which self is not the first principle, is neither a good patriot nor a good citizen, no matter bow much he may vaunt his patriotism. The educator, whether collegiate or intermediate, university or primary, which does not combine the love of God with that of man and in-

A well-instructed conscience is the source of power in the exercise of civic rights, for it expresses the moral obligation which binds men to act, not for selfinterest or prejudice, but for the common good. There is but one standard of moral-ity—the same for the private citizen as for the public official. Religion alone can train conscience. If there be no religion there is little conscience, and consequently no true sense of moral obligation. The training which ignores conscience, which es not train conscience right, runs the great risk of being a curse rather than a

This question is made important to the university by 'he recent conference of Catholic colleges at Chicago, which, initiated by the university, and presided over by the right reverend rector, has had for its aim the unification of the educational system of the church. DEMANDED ICE WATER.

Point Without a Strike. New York, June 7 .- A threatened strike of big proportions was narrowly averted among the workingmen of the great plant of the Standard Oil Company at Constable Hook yesterday.

The discontent among the 2,000 or more men that constitute the company's working force was not over a question of wages, but against the alleged tyrannical action of Superintendent Utley Wedge, who insisted that the employes should drink water conveyed through iron pipes exposed to the brolling sun, which at the faucetshad a temperature of from 70 to 75 degrees, instead of the cool supply hereto-fore received from artesian wells and made palatable with fee and oatmeal. palatable with fee and oatmeal.

In a spirit of economy Superintendent Wedge, who is a newcomer, caused to be laid off the gang of water carriers who had kept the men supplied, and at the same time cut off the ice and oatmeal.

Big Car-Wheel Combination. Boston, June 7.—The incorporation of various car-wheel manufacturing concerns, under the title of the International Carwheel Company, includes two local com-panies, the Swett Carwheel and Foundry Company and the Boaton Carwheel Company, both having works at Chelses. At present ten companies are included in the combine, all of which make a specialty of the manufacture of chilled cast-iron wheels, though they also turn out other railway supplies. The compolificated company is capitalized at $15,000,000.

TWO AGED PERSONS CRUSHED TO DEATH

John M. Glover Falls Before a Caravan, and Mrs. Harrington

New York, June 7 .- John M. Glover, sixty-five years old, a retired lawyer, of No. 35 Prospect Street, Brooklyn, was crushed to death under the wheels of a truck at Broadway and Pine Street yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Glover attempted to get off a northbound cable car before it stopped and, falling, got between the front and rear wheels of a truck. The rear wheels passed over his chest, crushing it, and causing fatal injuries. He died in the ambulance that was called to take him to the Hudson Street Hospital.

Thomas Duffy, of No. 17 Centre Street Fitzpatrick released them in the custody of their counsel.

Mr. Glover boarded car No. 213 at South pavement.

The truck is the property of C. W. H. Carter, a paint manufacturer in Vandewater Street. Mr. Carter called at the poice station and informed Captain Westervelt that Duffy was one of the best men he had in his employ, and had the reputation of being a good careful driver. Several witnesses of the accident fol-lowed the prisoners to the station and added their testimony that Duffy or the added their testimony that Duffy or the men on the car were not to blame. All seemed to think Mr. Glover's impatience responsible for the disaster.

Mr. Glover had lived at No. 35 Prospect Street, Brooklyn, where he had a furnished room, for four years. His landiady, Mrs. Lees, said he came to the Equitable Building, in Broadway, for an allowance every Tuesday, and it was this mission that brought him here yesterday. He was once employed by the law firm of Coudert Brothers.

A daughter, named Agnes, came from Chicago last Sunday and was to sail for Burope. Mr. Glover had a son, who is employed as an inspector on a steamship dock here.

While attempting to cross Centre Street in front of the criminal court building last night, Mary Harrington, sixty years old. hight, Mary Harrington, sixty years old, who lived with her son Timothy, at No. 74 Oliver Street, became confused and stepped in front of a swiftly-moving electric car, meeting instant death.

George Fitzmorris, twenty-two years old, of No. 117 Monroe Street, the motorman, was arrested and locked up in the Elizabeth Street police station. Shouts of "Lynch him," were heard but the av-
